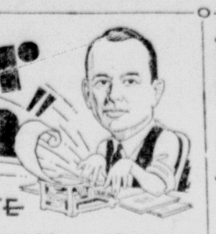
ROCKDALE CELEBRATES JULY 4TH

"Our Town"



by J. B. WHITE

All should thoroughly understand the nature and purpose of the American Liberty League, which pretends that it has no political purpose except to defend and uphold the Constitution of the United States.

The primary aim of the American Liberty League is to secure the mass support of billions of dollars to protect from legislative change the privileges and unjust powers of these wealthy economic barons. A recent report of the United Press said that the League was under the control of a group who represented industrial and financial organizations with assets of more than thirty seven billions. It is pointed out that on the League's executive and advisory council are men connected with such corporations as the United States Steel Corporation, General Motors, Standard Oil, Chase National Bank, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Westinghouse Electric and many other huge corporations. On the advisory council are two DuPonts, John J. Raskob, Alfred P. Sloan, A. A. Sprague and others.

The Average American citizen, when he knows the facts about the American Liberty League, should have sense enough to realize exactly how much of his welfare this organization has at heatrt. The interests of billionaires and ordinary farmers and working people are not identical. The plutocrats want to keep the privileges and powers which have brought them wealth and keeps it for them. The aerage American citizen favors proper legislative control to prevent a small group of people reaping the major part of the benefits which come from the protection and activity of a large social unit.

Well, here is more evidence that the government should get out of business and not interfere with the profits of the individual. The Senate munitions committee reports that the navy, in calling for bids on warships, is at the mercy of the private ship builders and has to take the low bid regardless of what it is. Moreover, it is indicated that the private yards cost the government from one to two million dollars more per cruiser than the navy yards.

This won't do! The government has no right to build its own warships and keep private corporations from getting million dollar rake-offs. It has no business blundering in ship construction and exhibiting the well known inefficiency of government. When the nation wants a navy the idea is to let the ship builders get together, decide how much profit they will be satisfied with, and all the government has to do is pay for the ships! That will be enough.

Congressional investigators uncover many strange facts but perhaps the most amusing incident of the Washington horoscope in recent months came to light last week when the House committee investigating chain store practices, got in behind John A. Logan $15,000 Washington representative of the chain store organization.

It seems that another organization, the National Anti-Chain Store League, had a publicity man but he was paid $50 a week for three months by Brother Logan who says that he was anxious to discover whether the anti-organization was circulating Nazi propaganda. Patriot Logan admitted, however, that he received from his spy a list of independent grocers to whom anti-chain store propaganda was sent together with a suggested draft of counter-propaganda to be sent to the same grocers. He named a number of chain store officials as those who authorized him to spend money to get under cover information from the anti-chain official but said they were al-

WHY NOT TRAIN FOR HAPPY HOME-MAKING?

I wonder how many of the lovely June brides know how to cook a meal or keep house or manage a family budget.

It is a really appalling fact that the success, perhaps, of the most important career a girl can choose is left to chance.

The girl who studies to be a physician or nurse, school teacher or musician prepares for this work by long years of study and practice. She reads innumerable books on her chosen subject and tries to absorb every new thing that has been found out about it.

But she never thinks it necessary to study the art of being a perfect mother or wife. She seems to expect, in some miraculous manner to know what makes a balanced meal and how to prepare it expertly and economically without ever a moments study, without listening to a single lecture or without any experience, whatsoever.

And when her new husband's indigestion, caused by half done or burned up food, turns him into an irritable human being instead of an adoring mate, the young wife who does not know how to budget her strength or finances, is unable to cope with the situation which inevitably arises.

It takes a lot of loving and patience to overcome these inefficiency handicaps. If a girl is well trained in this manner of housekeeping and masaging, her chancees are many times better for matrimonial happiness than is that of her hit-or-miss sister.

Goodness knows there is enough adjustment to be made during the first few years of marriage without having to work on food which leaves one with that half starved feeling or the sense of having feasted on brick bats. Even if one can afford a maid, she should know how to cook, for a maid will do much better work if she realizes that her mistress knows what it is all about.

Every school should, I think, put in a home course for boys and girls. The boys should be taught how to fix a jammed door or window, simple plumbing problems, to fix electric fixtures which fail to work, gardening and numerous other things which would mean a lot to a young couple. Doing things like these not only saves money but creates interest in one's own home and to some extent keeps down the unhealthy idea that to have a good time one must go somewhere.

If we would create a desire in every potential husband and wife to study this problem of home making before undertaking it, I feel sure that a good portion of our divorce business would be done away with.

Yours,
LOUISA.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

15 WAYS TO SAVE GASOLINE LISTED

When the man bites the dog, it is news. And when a gasoline company advises motorists how to save gasoline, that is news, too.

Hence it is news to announce that the Gulf Refining Company, now running an advertising schedule in the Herald, has just issued a booklet entitled "15 Ways To Save Gasoline Money." Although the information contained in the eight-page booklet is simple, it consists of driving hints which should benefit millions of motorists.

Do you know what parking secret saves gasoline? The booklet tells you. Have you discovered what driving speeds assure the greatest economy in gasoline consumption? This booklet tells you. And what fact concerning the inflation of your tires boosts your gasoline mileage? The booklet tells you this, too.

According to Dr. Paul D. Foote, vice-president of the Gulf Research and Development Corporation, considerable care was given to the preparation of the literature. The data was prepared, changed, and checked over and over again by the leading petroleum and automotive engineers. Caution was exercised in listing the various methods to save the motorists' money, and at least 15 additional ways to cut gasoline costs were eliminated because they were open to debate.

For convnience's sake, the Gulf booklet is divided into three sections. The first chapter is devoted to economy short-cuts which can be controlled by the motorist. The second part is given over to economies which can be secured at no cost at reputable service stations or dealers, such as Gulf stations. And the third section consists of savings which can be obtained through enlisting the help of competent garage mechanics.

To announce this new booklet "15 Ways To Save Gasoline Money," to the motoring public, the Gulf Refining Company has undertaken an advertising campaign which is outstanding in many ways, including the number of newspapers to be used. More than 1200 papers from Maine to Texas, the largest journalistic army in the modern history of petroleum advertising, will be employed. The offer of the free booklet to any motorist who will drive into the Gulf's 40,000 dealers is allied with an interesting "sporting offer" to car owners.

Farm Club Notes

As a reward and appreciation for the work being carried on in the county by the 4-H boys and girls, a two day camp is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Program for the event will be most instructive and recreational. R. R. Reppert Extention Entomologist and E. C. Martin, State Boys Club Agent from A. & M. College, are expected to attend and take part on the program. Food preservation, dress and history book contests will be held. Winners from each divison will be awarded a short course scholorship.

Plans for A. & M. Short Course at College Station are well under way. Due to the overcrowded conditions last year, which probably will exist this year, Milam county delegates are urged to make room reservations early. The fee for the week for each individual will be $1.50. Additional 25c fee which entitles the holder to attend the circus and all night programs. This fee may be paid when th eroom reservations are made. Room reservations may be made at the home demonstration agent's office. Delegates are urged to send fees before July 11th as the first group of reservations will be mailed in to A. & M. on that date.

In behalf of the Home Demonstration club members of Milam county, I wish to express appreciation to the Chamber of Commerce and American Legion of Cameron for making it possible for our rally day in Cameron a pleasant and successful eent.

Bertha Fae Strange,
County Home Demonstration Agent.

In accomplishing the goals of preparing 4 containers of pickles and relish for the 4-H Encampment Exhibit, four girls' clubs report a total of 231 containers of pickles and relishes added to the pantry during the month of June. Other products were: 398 containers of vegetables; 51 containers soup mixtures; 24 containers jelly, jam and preserves; 40 containers tomatoes; one full garden started.

A proof that 4-H Club Girls assume responsibility is evident from the work of Marie Mertz, first year club girl and garden demonstrator for the San Gabriel 4-H Club. Besides planning, planting and cultivating the family garden Marie has put on the pantry shelf 92 containers pickles and relishes, 10 containers fruit, and 237 containers of vegetables. "And there is still more to can," Marie states.

DRAFTED FROM RETIREMENT

Z. E. Marvin

Texas insurance underwriters would not let Z. E. Marvin of Dallas go into retirement. The insurance leader announced a week ago, with his resignation as president of one of the largest Texas companies, that he was through with active business. But when more than 100 telegrams from state underwriters arrived, drafting him as chairman of the board of the Texas State Mutual Life Co., Mr. Marvin reconsidered. A few days ago he assumed his new office with the Texas mutual organization.

Nine ex-presidents of the United States stepped out of the highest of elective offices in the country to become executives of mutual companies. The latest of these is Herbert Hoover. Calvin Coolidge at the time of his death held a high post in a mutual company and Alfred E. Smith, former Democratic nominee for president now holds a similar position.

RELIEF CONTINUES

The Emergency Relief Administration, handling direct relief, will probably have to spend some money in July as it will be well 'nigh impossible to take care of the unemployed through new work relief projects.

BOXING NOTES.

Now that July 4 has rolled around again it's time for the various sports writers to begin producing alibis, or to begin looking for congratulations, as the case may be, because the national holiday has long been acclaimed as the date that decides the major league pennant races. The concensus of opinion for many years has been that whatever team has managed to beat off the early "rookie team" threats and climb to the head of the list by July will still be at the top post when the time comes for the handing out of the winning honors.

Should the traditional method of picking the winners prove correct this year, the scribes who banked their hopes on the two New York nines should be the ones to look for the congratulations, for the records so far point strongly toward an All-New York finish. Though other teams, including the Chisox, Tigers Indians, Cards and Pirates have shown enough to stay consistently in the first division, the Manhattan squads have produced what it takes, and have spent most of the season thus far on top of their respective heaps.

In looking over the records for causes of the success of the leaders, one thing stands out—pitching. The Yankees have not been the usual power house on attack, what with Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri and the rest hitting way below their lifetime averages, but this lack of punch has been more than offset by effective twirling. Much of the burden has been carried by two who were not considered before the season to be the topnotchers they are, Vito Tamulis and Johnny Allen. Tamulis is a rookie whose experience in the big time show goes back only to the start of the present campaign. He has been erratic, it is true, but seventy-five per cent of the recruits are spotty performers. When Vito has been right, though, he has been very right. Allen, after being forced to remain out of the ball nearly all of last season, has returned to his old form, and has been the Yanks' most consistent winner. Although Gomez and Ruffing, the other starters, have not been at their best, their performances have been of great help to a team that has had to depend almost entirely on pitching.

The Giants have perhaps the best rounded out club in either league. Bill Terry has had no less than six starting pitchers on whom he may depend to give an excellent account of themselves. Hubbell, Parmalee, Schumacher, and Fitzsimmons, the quartet brought over from last year, have proven themselves capable of coping with the best in the league's hitting department. Clydell Castleman, rookie, has turned in some nifty performances, and as a result gets in his share of games. Leon Chagnon, traded to the giants last winter from Pittsburgh, recently started his first game in two years, and rewarded Marse Bill by allowing the Reds but two bingles in eight innings, though losing the game. Terry is sure to call upon him for future turns on the hill. Though the curving corps stands out as the best asset of the Clan, the Terrymen, as it has been mentioned, have retained topnotch exhibitions in other departments. When injuries forced three regular infielders out of the game at the same time in May, the Club continued its winning ways by supplying inner guardians in the form of Ott, outfielder; rookie Cuccinello, hurriedly recalled from Nashville, and Koenig the most versatile utility man in baseball. And the club has been consistently near the top in club batting.

Jesse Owens continues to clean up in college track meets, holding his reputation as the greatest track and field performer of the times. The Ohio State Negro ran away with the 100 and 220 dashes, the 220 low hurdles, and the broad jump in the recent N. C. A. A. meet to score 40 of Ohio State's 40 1-5 points, giving his team second place behind Southern California.

The American sloop, Yankee, has not fared so well in its attempts to score honors for America in British races. The Yankee is not the first American racing yacht to fall down in British waters, and its success in the early regattas has been followed by repeated repulses at the hands of Sopwith and other British yacht owners. Conditions of the winds and other hazards are said to be too much for the handlers of the American sloop, which would do much better should the races be held in familiar waters.

For the third consecutive year California took first place honors in the annual Poughkeepsie regetta. Only a fraction of a second separated California from Cornell, runner-up, and the judges were forced to hold a consultation before announcing the winner. The annual Yale-Harvard races, perhaps the most famous duel crew meet in collegiate ranks, proved to be a clean sweep for the Eli, who won the freshman, jayvee, and varsity races. The freshman and jayvee races were each won by a margin of 2-5 of a second, while the varsity was a rout for Yale as the latter finished by a comfortable distance.

The question now is, "Just how far will Joe Louis go?" The Brown bomber continued his long string of victories by putting away Primo Carnera, former title holder, in six rounds, winning on a T. K. O., after the 265 pound Italian groggily admitted defeat. Louis has been boxing professionally only a little more than a year, yet in that time has won all of his 23 fights, including 19 that saw his opponent unable to go the route with him.

Batter Up—When a sacrificial effort gains nil. . . . Eric McNair was chasing a long foul by Hank Greenberg. . . . Just as he reached the ball he remembered that Jo-Jo White, speed demon, was on third, and would surely score after the catch. . . . Therefore Eric let the ball slip through his fingers, knowing that he would be charged with an error. . . . Greenberg thanked McNair by slapping a single that not only scored White, but Cochrane, who was on second, also. . . . Lloyd Brown Cleveland twirler, was born on Christmas Day, as was Ben Chapman, Yanks. . . . Jack Redmond, Nats, will celebrate his birthday on Labor Day. . . . The Armistice was signed on the birthday of Hal Trosky, Indians. . . . Bill Rogell, Tigers, and Fred Marberry, American League umpire were born on Thanksgiving Day. . . . The Pirates bought Kiki Cuyler more than a decade ago after a buccaneer scout had seen him, while playing center field, catch a foul fly. . . . Brick Owens seems to be losing his popularity as an American League arbiter. . . . Alabama Pitts started off his Albamy career with an excellent performance.

Between Rounds—As was predicted, the Louis-Carnera gate nearly doubled that of the Baer-Braddock scrap. . . . Louis says if he ever draws a gate resembling that Dempsey-Tunney '27 crowd, he'll retire regardless of standing. . . . Jim Braddock says he doesn't care whether or not his coming theatrical tour hurts his chances of successfully defending the heavy weight title. . . . After having to depend on relief for existence, Braddock plans to take all the dough possible for the sake of his family. . . . It is a sure bet that regardless of who is James J.'s next opponent, the challenger will enter the ring the favorite. . . . Jack Sharkey would attempt a comeback in a bout with Braddock if the officials would let him do so without forcing him to go through a series of elimination battles. . . . What can Louis do against Baer? . . . A victory would establish him as the leading contender to Braddock's throne. . . . Or maybe Schmeling's, if the latter has fought and defeated Braddock by that time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCoy of Temple were recent visitors in Cameron with Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Dunham.

so animated by patriotic concern about the alleged Nazi charge.

House members of the committee were skeptical and did not hesitate to voice their disbelief. They thought the Nazi buncombe was an after thought, developed when the committee seized the chain organization's files and discovered it had been snooping into the affairs of the anti group. Moreover, it seems Patriot Logan, who intended to give the Nazi information to another House committee investigating un-American activity, never had gotten around to it.

Report on Birth Control

A week or so ago at the annual convention of the American Medical Association the question of birth control received its first official recognition by the House of Delegates, the governing body of organized American medicine.

The Association in its resolution did not concern itself either for or against control of reproduction but it provided for the appointment of a special committee to study the problem and make a report to the Association at its convention in 1937.

This action was exactly opposite to the fate encountered by similar resolutions for four consecutive years.

Flying High.

Aerial engineers believe that high flying, airplanes at forty thousand feet altitudes, will soon be available, offering all that can be desired in safety and desirability.

Airships in the stratosphere will not encounter fog, irregular wind or ice, which causes most of the dangers at low altitudes. In case of trouble it would take a plane one hour to glide from forty thousand feet to a landing and in doing so it could pick out any spot within a radius of one hundred and twenty miles.

The only objection to high-altitude flying is the possibility of monotony for passengers might find the darkened sky and reduced visibility of the earth tiresome.

For Merchants Only.

It behooves the merchants of this city to prepare for fall business. Many of them are buying and receiving new goods daily for their stores. These wares will not sell themselves.

Along with the buying of new merchandise, the up to date merchant is planning a campaign of advertising. He wants the buying public to know what bargains he has and is anxious to create an impression that his store is the best place from which to buy.

The concensus of opinion among advertising experts in this country is that the local newspaper is without an equal in its field. The wise expenditure in the prosecution of a steady persistent advertising campaign is known to produce results. The Herald will be glad to assist local merchants in their advertising and advise with them freely in an effort to make advertising in this paper mutually profitable.

Many merchants assume that the writing of an advertisement is a trivial function of the store. This is a serious mistake and is the cause of failure, oftimes, to reap the benefits which inevitably follow progressive advertising. One of the greatest lessons of advertising is the fact that competitive advertisements, as a rule, pay all advertisers through the development and encouragement of the business thus derived.

Worth More Than a Title.

We don't know how long the Hon. James J. Braddock will remain heavyweight champion of the United States, and other nations, but has something of a record worth noting.

About a year ago he was on relief, receiving altogether some $367 from the government to take care of himself and family. What of it? Well, the night before he won his title he forced the New Jersey relief administrator to take his note for that amount and since the fight he has paid it in full before it became due.

Evidently he believes in paying his bills even when there is no law to make him do so. That is worth more than a boxing championship.

They Get Rich Quick.

People still live who are ready to invest their savings with the man who promises to make them rich.

Last week police in a large city uncovered the activities of a man who mulcted a number of customers out of thousands of dollars. He got them to invest, paid huge "profits" for a month or so, persuaded them to take more stock then came the blow-up. The investments are a total loss.

Time and again the Herald has warned its readers not to gamble on any get rich quick scheme. When any agent tries to sell you anything that will make you more than a legitimate return on your money that is the time to show him out and save your cash.

Summer Advertising Good.

Local merchants who intend to get their share of the fall business can take a step forward by advertising in the summer.

Too many store keepers think that the time to advertise is when everybody else is doing so, forgetting that when the other man lays off the field is wide open. Then, much of the value of advertising is to be found in the good will created, and this can be done very efficiently in slack periods when other stores are content to keep silent.

The merchants who will do judicious advertising between the first of July and the fall trade will find the groundwork prepared for bigger results when the money begins to come home. Many a sale is made months before the customer comes into the store.

The Churches Grow.

While statistics as to the growth of churches are to be taken with some reservations, because they are sent in by the churches themselves, the fact that these figures show that all of our leading religious bodies have recorded gains over a period of seven years may be taken as an indication that religion is not yet as dead as some people would like to make out.

There are we understand, about 240,000 ministers in the nation, or about one for every 500 persons. The presumption is that there are as many churches. Last year, according to the Christian Herald, there was a gain of 1,222,064 in the membership of the churches and religious bodies, which brings the total above 62,000,000—approximately half of the population.

A Vexing Problem.

Evidently, there is danger in any method of control of Federal Reserve system, whether it be of bankers on the one hand or politicians' on the other.

The question is whether one can expect better results from either plan. Almost everybody realizes that neither bankers or politicians are to be trusted with the immense power to control national credit operations and yet, it seems, somebody must have the power.

Naturally, the exercise of the immense financial power as a trusteeship, in the interest of the people as a whole is the goal. But vexing questions confront those willing to accept the responsibility on that basis because of so little general agreement on the part of financial authorities as to any proper course at any time.

Charge Does Not Affect Facts.

The Senate investigating committee uncovered facts which will probably lead to measures to prevent shipbuilders and munitions makers from profiteering on contracts with the government.

It now develops that H. S. Raushenbush, counsel for the committee, whose work was largely responsible for the disclosures, is accused of writing articles of a "socialistic trend." The accusation, it seems, is intended to discredit him and thus weaken the effect of the committee's revelations.

What we cannot understand, however, is why any charge against Mr. Raushenbush has anything to do with the revelations of the committee. Suppose, for example, he is whatever his critics call him. Does this excuse exhorbitant profits on warships, munitions or collusive bidding on government work?

Milano Man Wins Suit Against Bee Line Coaches, Inc.

Charles Martin, of Milano, suing for his son, Charles Martin, Jr., was awarded $3,750 damages under an agreed judgment handed down by Judge Few Brewster Saturday morning against Beeline Coaches, Inc., and the owner of the company, Sam Day.

Damages were awarded as compensation for personal damages allegedly sustained at Milano recently.

The boy suffered a broken elbow and foot.

The petition of the boy's father asked $72,500 damages. In answer to the plea for damages, the bus company alleged that the accident occurred unavoidably when the boy came from behind the car into the path of the bus.

COMETS WIN IN CLOSE GAME SUNDAY

The XXX Pearl Comets defeated the Burlington Bear Cats in a hard fought game at Burlington Sunday. The final score being 3 to 2 for the Comets. This was truly a pitcher's duel between Schottle and Monroe Vogelsang. he Bear-Cats made 2 runs and 4 hits off Schottle, while the Comets made three runs and five hits off Vogelsang. The first run being unearned. Each team made 2 errors. This was a spectacular and thrilling game all the way. The Comets received a run in the third inning by an overthrow to third base by first baseman. The score stood 1 to 0 till the ninth inning when Ondrej was on first base and Henderson Walker comes to bat and poled out a home run to left field giving the Comets the winning margin.

In the last part of the ninth inning Burlington threatened to come from behind. Krause was walked. Helpert knocked a two bagger. Cabron then singled scorng two runs. With the tieing run on first the Comets went into a huddle. The outcome of the huddle was that Jackson, the first baseman and Schottle swapped positions until Jackson struck out Marek, the next man to come up, who was a left hand hitter. Then Schottle again assumed the mound and struck out Mees for the last out of the game and ending the belated threat for victory.

This was the second victory for the Comets in the last half of the Cen-Tex cup race which makes them two wins and no losses. The Comets will go to Giddings on July Fourth for an exhibition game which does not count is the cup race.

On Sunday, July 7th the Temple Surgeons will invade Cameron for their first clash of the season with the Comets. The Surgeons defeated Jarrell 1 to 0 in a thirteen inning game Sunday. Jarrell is another strong team which the Comets will face at a later date.

Washington News For Milam County Farmers

From Cameron Herald's Washington Bureau

FARM BUYING VITAL.

LOOKS FOR IMPROVEMENT.

FIGHTING THE AAA.

TO END FARM TENANCY.

The advantages that will accrue to industry from improved buying power on American farms is well illustrated when we reflect that of the 30,000,000 persons dependent on agriculture for their living:

73 per cent have to carry water from wells or other sources of supply;

77 per cent have to get along with outdoor toilets;

93 per cent have neither bath tub nor shower;

76 per cent have only kerosene or gasoline lamps;

36 per cent are without electricity.

These figures were called to the attention of the plumbers of America, who met in Chicago last week, by Morris L. Cooke, Administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration. You may wonder what it has to do with the plumbing business but it would take the manufacturers of bathroom equipment in this country from seven to ten years of steady production to supply the demand of all farm homes could be brought up to the American standard. Moreover installation of these would furnish employment for many unemployed plumbers.

As Mr. Cooke pointed out, it is wrong to assume that our great farming population goes without the benefits of sanitary equipment because its standards are low. Only the inability to purchase stands between the farmer and the development of a tremendous demand for, not only bathroom fixtures, but many other industrial products, and for that reason, it would seem, industry would rally around any program that looks to the improvement of the farm income of this country.

Incidentally W. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit administration believes that the rapidly unfolding improvement in agriculture points to a much greater volume of business and that as a result of further increases in farm commodity prices and farm purchasing power there will be less use of time purchases, store credit and other ox-cart methods of financing farm production.

Housewives are appearing in Washington to demand a congressional investigation into food prices, with some of them relating tales of starvation and privation because of high food prices. They assert that the packers profited "at our expense" from the AAA, drought relief and pig slaughtering.

At the same time reports from several cities tell of court proceedings instituted by various plaintiffs, seeking to restrain the government from collecting hog-processing taxes levied under the AAA.

Farmers in this country, and those elsewhere, might as well keep their eyes open and be ready at all times to repel these attacks upon the present program. They should realize that regardless of the plan undertaken improve their buying power, there will be adverse interests, some powerful, to fight against it with every legal power and with ample financial resources to carry on the warfare.

The Bankhead bill to aid tenant farmers to buy their own farms which was before the Senate in April and withdrawn in the face of hostility, passed the upper house last week, although denounced by its foes as a paternalistic and illogical scheme. Forty Democrats, three Republicans and two Independents voted for the measure which was opposed by eighteen Democrats and fourteen Republicans.

With an authorized capital of $50,000,000 and the right to issue bonds up to $1,000,000,000 the measure would create a Farmers Home Corporation, with power to make loans for buying farms, farm houses, livestock equipment, machinery, furnishings and supplies. No bonds could be issued the first year, and only $300,000,000 in the first three years.

Loans woul be limited to an amount paid for an average farm in a particular state. This, it is claimed by opponents, varies from 55 acres in Mississippi to 1,185 in Nevada and in value from $1,813 in Mississippi to $19,655 in Iowa. Other critics contend that to slupply all tenant farmers with farms of average size would cost $21,000,000,000 and that it is not the business of the government to buy farms for anybody.

While in sympathy with the purpose of the bill, to rehabilitate tenant farmers, this writer renders no opinion as to the results to be obtained. Individual farmers, however, are urged to think the matter out for themselves and watch the workings of congress.

Worthwhile Manhood

By HILLIARD THOMAS

We have come to that period in life when we must face the future and make our own decisions. The thing that is most necessary in all of life's relationships is faith in each other. Without that faith our various civic and social organizations would be of no value, business would collapse and our civilization could not succeed.

Admiral Farragut in questioning one of his officers who had failed in an important enterprise asked: "Do you know why you did not get into Charleston harbor with your ironclads?" "It was because the channel was so crooked," replied the officer. "No DuPont, it was not that," said Farragut. "Well, the Confederate fire was perfectly horrible." "Yes, but it was not that." "What was it then?" "It was because you did not believe you could go in." It takes faith for us to progress and succeed in life. Without it we will not be able to succeed or achieve anything of any importance.

Theodore Roosevelt summed up the theme of Worthwhile Manhood when he said: "First, fit yourself for the work God has for you to do in this world, and lose no time about it. Second, have all the fun that is coming to you. Third, go ahead, do something, and be willing to take responsibility. Fourth, learn by your mistakes."

Now that we are about to enter upon life's highway it behooves each of us to select the particular type of work that best suits us. We do not have a long time to prepare for this work as our years of usefulness are few. Therefore, we must make our choice and set to work to prepare ourselves to do this type of work to the best of our ability.

Life should not be merely hard work. We should learn to mix pleasure and work to such an extent that each may supplement the other. One thing that we must observe in our leisure time is to do something worthwhile and something that will lead to a more wholesome life. Let us learn the wise use of leisure time, remembering that each is the master of his destiny and the captain of his soul.

It is an easy matter to sit by and watch while other people do the work that we should be doing. The world is fast being filled with idlers and parasites. We who are young and eager for life should not be afraid of work. "Share the work" is a nobler slogan than "Share the wealth." We have a questionable right to share that which we do not help to create. The world in reconstructing its attitude toward work. The old definitions of a gentleman as "one who does not soil his hands with labor" is as obsolete as the minuet, powdered wigs and silver snuff boxes. A modern world insists that its gentlemen, and its ladies, shall fit themselves to contribute something to the world's work, and that each shall perform his task with ability and honor. He who sits helplessly while others labor is no longer the gentleman but the parasite.

He who is untrained for work is a misfit in life. He must be cared for by others, or else he starves—and so he becomes a burden to the world and its workers. The idler also misses the thrill of watching his work grow and of knowing that he has contributed his part to the progress of the world. He misses the whole gay adventure of life.

Everyone should learn to think for himself and in doing so should have a clear clean vision that will lead to his betterment. So many of us are like sheep. We like to follow a leader. If we think for ourselves and put our thoughts in practice rather than accepting the ideas of other people and following them, we will find that our success or failure depends entirely upon ourselves. And we will work harder because we must work in order to live.

Every business man makes errors and mistakes but only by these errors may he grow and build a better organization. In our own lives we may learn even through our mistakes and build up a body and mind that will be superior and more capable to think and grasp new ideas.

So many graduates have the idea that there is nothing left in this world for them to do, and we have especially at this time obtained this idea on account of so many unemployed persons throughout our nation. Still there are many fields in business and science that have not yet been trodden. Many of the paths of life have been trodden before but how much improvement could be made on them!

Gen. Phil. Kearney, during a terrific battle in the War of Southern Seccession was seated on horseback in the thick smoke and bullets, when a colonel rode up and said, "Where shall I lead my reigment, sir?" "Go anywhere instantly," replied the General, "There is splendid fighting all along the line." The colonel went in, and before nightfall the battle was won. Let's not wait for an opening to come but force our way through the smoke of the battle of life and find an opening through which to go.

Thus if we enter into the battle of life quickly and completely and go to fight it through we too should be able to conquer and be victorious in the end.

"We must not hope to be mowers,
And gather the ripe gold ears,
Unless we have first been sowers
And watered the furrows with tears.
It is not just as we take it,
This mystical world of ours,
Life's fields will yield as we make it
A harvest of thorns or of flowers."

MISS EVARD TELLS ABOUT NATIONAL 4-H CONGRESS

Miss Mable Evard, one of two Texas girls to be chosen a delegate to the national 4-H Club Congress in Washington, has returned to her home at Minerva.

For several years Miss Evard has been active in club work and has made and broken many records in this county. She has had 5 years of work in the clubs. Miss Bertha Fae Strange, home agent also attended the congress.

Miss Evard in discussing her Washington trip said:

"Forty one states in the Union were represented by 4-H Club boys and girls and workers. We met each morning in the Agriculture building and heard lectures from eminent people of Washington. The theme throughout the meeting was 'service.' We toured interesting points in and near Washington during the afternoon. The most interesting thing to me at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington was the Plane 'Spirit of St. Louis,' flown by Charles A. Lindbergh in 1927 in the non-stop flight from New York to Paris, France.

"Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt paid a visit to the headquarters of the 4-H Clubs, which was between the Capital and the Washington monument. Mrs. Roosevelt stated that she especially wanted to see the Texas girls and boys as she had a son in Fort Worth."

Miss Evard during the past year has attended C. I. A., Denton. She aspired to be a home economics teacher or county home demonstrator. The profits she made from her five years of club work was $1,630.00 which assisted Miss Evard to attend C. I. A this past year. During the five years of her club work, Miss Evard carried all the demonstrations offered which were yard, bed-room and pantry.

Sunday School Lesson

by HENRY-RADCLIFFE

NAOMI AND RUTH

International Sunday School Lesson for July 14, 1935

GOLDEN TEXT: "A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised." Proverbs 31-30.

(Lesson Text: Ruth 1:14-22 4:14-17)

The book of Ruth was one of the five "rolls" or short writings which were read in the synagogue on five great days of the Jewish calendar. Ruth was read at the Feast of Penticost, the harvest festival.

The time of the story goes back nearly twelve centuries before Christ. The date of authorship is not known positively. Some think it was written during the time of Ezra, and was intended as a protest against his harsh policy towards foreigners.

A reading of the Book shows very plainly its tendency to encourage friendliness with those of other races. Its attitude is a long stride from that practiced by the early Israelites, who believed that God wanted them to kill all the Canaanities. Not only does Ruth, the Moabitess, marry the well-to-do Boaz, but she is accepted as a member of a Jewish community and is the ancestress of David, the great king, and the even greater Jesus, the Messiah.

The story given us in the Book of Ruth is simple yet very powerful in its portrayal of understandable human motives and characteristics. While the Judges ruled Israel, a Jew by the name of Elimelek, with his wife, Naomi, and two sons, migrated to Moab. An old legend says that the head of this family was wealthy and moved away to avoid having to care for the less fortunate during the distress of the family, probably originated to justify the misfortune which later came to this group in their new land. However, it is just as probable that Elimelek had to leave for a more fertile region in order to keep alive, just as other well known Biblical personages had done.

In Moab, the two sons marry, Mahlon to Ruth, and Chilion to Orpah. These women of Moab were worshipers of the regional god, Chemosh, for at that time even the Hebrews recognize that other lands and peoples had their own gods. In the course of time Elimeleck died and the same fate overtook his two sons, leaving Naomi and her daughters-in-law widows. It seems that Naomi regarded the deaths, partly at least, as the punishment for having left their own native land.

Naomi decided to return to her people in Bethlehem, her home town, and the two other widows accompanied her on the journey, as was the custom towards a departing guest. The older woman finally told Orpah and Ruth to return to their homes, notwithstanding their expressed willingness to go with her, but while Ruth refused to leave Naomi, Orpah did so, and we hea rno more about her. When Naomi again advised Ruth to stay in her own country the younger woman uttered the well known pasage contained in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses. Ruth realized that her positon among the Jews would be difficult, for they would regard her as a heathen and accursed, but her love for Naomi was such that she faced this ordeal rather than desert her at the time

When the two women arrived at Bethlehem the city was interested considerably. The people could hardly believe that this was the same Naomi who had left only ten years before. Ruth seems to have conducted herself so as to gain the admiration and esteem of her neighbors. In order to secure food for herself and mother in law, Ruth gleaned in the fields of Boaz. The Hebrews had the kindly habit of leaving some of the grain from their crops for the poor and needy and Ruth was taking advantage of this. She attracted the attention of Boaz, who finally married her. The Book throws some interesting lights on the social customs of that time.

"No more is said of Ruth," says Rev. Robert F. Horton. "She was only introduced into Scripture to mark a link in the descent of the distant Messiah. For her foreign extraction and the improbability of a worshiper of Chemosh becoming an ancestress of the Messiah and not for her gentle ways of love, and the charms which won the heart of Boaz, does she figure among women of the Bible. But the hand of inspiration is opulent and delicate in its drawing; and introducing the tale of Ruth for another purpose, it draws the portrait of Ruth in this memorable way, to win the love of the ages, and to be the model for girls to imitate. Her grandson was Jesse and Jesse was the father of David. Beautiful to us must be every strand of goodness and beauty which made the stock from which, according to the flesh, Jesus Came."

BURLINGTON CUBS IN WIN OVER KNIGHTS

The Burlington Cubs shut out the Cameron K. of C.'s here Sunday 2 to nothing. Bill Olbrich pitching for the Burlington Cubs, cast a jinx on the usually heavy hitters in the K. of C. lineup, allowing only two hits, retiring four by way of the strike-out route.

Ladis Matula, pitching for the K. of C.'s did equally as well, allowing only four hits and struck out seven men. But a walk and too many unlucky breaks on the part of his teammates, brought in the winning runs.

Weid of Burlington collected the only two base hit of the game. J. Martin led the Cubs with two singles. For the Knights, Rudy Michalka and Everett Bell carried off two treasured hits on their side of the game:

HARLEIGH McGREGOR IS MARRIED IN CAPE TOWN

Friends will be interested to knowo of the recent marriage of Harleigh H. McGregor, son of Mrs. C. P. McGregor of Cameron, to Miss Joyce Lambert, daughter of Rodney Lambert of Cape Town, South Africa, June 28.

Mr. McGregor was stationed at Cape Town for several months when the romance continued to grow. Their plans for marriage were made before he sailed February 13th for Bombay, India and later to Sydney, Australia. Miss Lambert sailed for Cape Town May 31st, arriving at Sydney, Australia June 28 when they were married, under the supervision of George Huffman and wife, his associate auditor who have also married on this trip, she having sailed from Houston to meet Mr. Huffman in Cape Town, where they were married near Christmas time.

Mr. McGregor has been employed by the Texas Company as auditor since completing school in Atlanta, in 1927,and has been foreign auditor for the past three years. He was reared in Cameron and has many friends here who will be waiting to welcome him home with his bride. He is the grand son of the late Maj. W. M. McGregor, mentioned by John Esten Cook in the Surrey of the Eagle's Nest, as "the Gallant McGregor." He is direct descendant of people who made early history in America, and is a man of high ideals and splendid business ability.

Mrs. Emma Tyson Porter

The following is dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Emma Porter who died at her home Saturday June 29, 10:30 a. m. She was born, reared and lived in the maysfield and Branchville communities for 60 years. She joined the Missionary Baptist church in early life and freely gave her time, means and interest to her church and its progress with faithful devotion.

Funeral services were held at the Branchville Baptist Church Sunday evening at 4 p. m. Her former pastor, Rev. George McClellen of Palacious conducting the services, assisted by the pastor, Rev. McLane and Bro. Henson. She was laid to rest in the Pebble Grove cemetery in the family lot. She was a descendent of one of the sturdy pioneer families of Milam county. A more lovable character never blessed this section or gave greater honor to motherhood and womanhood. Her life was a shining mark, her influence and inspiration to all she came in contact with. She was by nature endowed with a bright intellectual mind, and gave freely to those she loved so tenderly. At a young, tender age she felt the responsibility and care of an invalid mother and from then until the day of her death she was almost constantly, patiently, tenderly administering to those in pain and distress. She was unselfish, unassuming and died as she had lived, puietly and peacefully. She reared to womanhood and manhood one daughter and two sons, Mrs. Roy Yates of of Branchville, Paul Porter of Calvert and Buren Porter of Houston. She is survived by three children, three grand-children, three brothers and one sister. Her counsel and advice was often sought by both white and black. Her life was one of service. She lived her religion. Any effort on the part of the writer, who knew her so well, would be an injustice to her, but it can be said of her as the Apostle Paul said, "She fought a good life fight, she finished her course, she kept the faith."

When just a very small maid
Close to her mother's side she stayed,
Always ready to help ease pain
Seemed to have been her life long aim.
It was always helping others—
Friends, kindred, sisters brothers,
And also a very faithful mother,
Like her each child thought there was no other.
Many a stitch by her was made,
Always giving her neighbors aid.
The love of the Lord was in her heart
And from Him she did not depart.
The last message that was on her mind
Was from the reading from the Book Divine.
The Lord saw her weary soul
And quickly lifted her to her goal.
A message to her by Him was sent,
And quickly into His arms she went.

—Her Brother.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.
